

Do not wait to have your eyes
examined if there is an eye
emergency?

The eye doctors in Phoenix AZ always recommend people to get their eyes examined from time to time because certain eye symptoms can indicate the need for emergency eye care services.

The following symptoms may indicate an emergency requiring immediate medical attention.

Sudden loss of vision

Eye doctors in Phoenix AZ

A sudden loss of vision is an emergency situation and needs the attention of an eye doctor immediately. This problem can arise due to many factors including a retinal detachment.

Foreign particle in the eye

A foreign body can be anything, ranging from a small grain of sand to any metal particle. If you get something stuck in your eye, do not rub your eyes in an attempt to remove it.

Pain in the eye

Your eyes are not supposed to hurt. Unlike other areas of the body where the intermittent pain is somewhat normal, you should not experience pain in your eyes. You should go for emergency eye care services if you experience an eye pain.

Chemical burn

According to eye doctors in Phoenix Arizona, they see patients with chemical burns in their eye fairly often. These things may include things like household cleaners that have the potential to damage your eye.

Flashes

While you will find many people experiencing floaters or flashes at some point in life, but a sudden increase in it will need the attention of an eye doctor.

Emergency eye care

There can be many more eye situations that will need the attention of an emergency eye care service. If you feel you need these services, contact your eye care specialist as soon as possible.

www.gfeyecenter.com

